Forecast For Highland & Eilean Siar
Issued by Met Office Aberdeen
at 0400 on Tuesday 18 May 2021

++ Valid for broadcast between 0600 and 1800

Headline:
South bright with showers. Cloudier in north with occasional rain.

Today:
Bright start with sunny spells for most with a few showers but cloud and outbreaks of mainly light rain edging south across Caithness, Sutherland and Lewis through the day. Best of the sunshine towards Lochaber. Mainly light winds. Maximum temperature 14 deg C (57 deg F).

Tonight:
Some late sunshine in south but generally a cloudy evening with outbreaks of mainly light rain. Clearer but showery conditions spread south across northern parts overnight as northerly winds freshen. Minimum temperature 3 deg C (37 deg F).

Wednesday:
Rather cloudy start across the south with patchy, mainly light rain, otherwise a bright day with sunny spells and occasional showers. Best of the sunshine across the southwest. Northerly breeze. Maximum temperature 12 deg C (54 deg F).

Outlook for Thursday to Saturday:
Cloudy with outbreaks of rain Thursday and strengthening easterly winds. Cloud and rain clear eastwards through Friday with winds becoming northerly and easing. Sunny spells and showers through Saturday.

(C) Crown Copyright 2021. Published by the Met Office.